At CienciaPR part of our mission is to serve as a source of information, support, and connection for the sciences and Puerto Rico. At this moment in which Puerto Rico most needs us, we will be gathering from this page information relevant to our community after the passage of Hurricane Maria. We hope it helps rebuild Puerto Rico with science and education leading our way. We thank our community, partners, staff and volunteers for all of their help and support so far. Any resource or idea you would like to share relevant to these initiatives, please write to us!

How can you help?

- Money and materials donations related to science, education, and the environment
- How to get your institution involved
- Share public health educational information

For scientists and students in Puerto Rico

- Grants policies & deadline extensions
- Aid and support for affected scientists and students

Registration form to help coordinate and disseminate offers of aid to scientists and students in Puerto Rico and other areas of the Caribbean, whose work has been affected by Hurricane Maria available at:
