As part of the Community Engagement Core (CEC) of the Center of Collaborative Research in Health Disparities (CCRHD) at the University of Puerto Rico Medical Sciences Campus we are committed to provide strategies to enhance and expand academic-community partnerships as well as increase RCMI investigators’ ability to understand and incorporate community perspectives in research projects involving minority health and health disparities. This list of community and health organizations was prepared to serve as a basic reference guide to researchers who are interested in establishing community-academic collaborations for their research projects. It includes general contact information (website, email, telephone) and a specific person to contact in some cases. The list encompasses the community and health organizations the Community Engagement Core staff has met with so far, as we establish contact with other organizations they will be added to the list.

Prepared by: Irene Lafarga Previdi, RCMI-CCRHD Community Engagement Coordinator (July, 2019)
